Employees, officers and directors must act in the best interests of the Company. You must refrain from engaging in any activity or having a personal interest that presents a “conflict of interest.” A conflict of interest occurs when your personal interest interferes, or appears to interfere, with the interests of the Company. A conflict of interest can arise whenever you, as an officer, director or employee, take action or have an interest that prevents you from performing your Company duties and responsibilities honestly, objectively and effectively.

For example:

- No employee, officer or director shall perform services as a consultant, employee, officer, director, advisor or in any other capacity for, or have a financial interest in, a meaningful competitor of the Company or one of its businesses, other than services performed at the request of the Company and other than a financial interest representing less than one percent (1%) of the outstanding shares of a publicly-held company; and
- No employee, officer or director shall use his or her position with the Company to influence a transaction with a supplier or customer in which such person has any personal interest, other than a financial interest representing less than one percent (1%) of the outstanding shares of a publicly-held company.

If you are an employee of the Company, it is your responsibility to disclose any transaction or relationship that reasonably could be expected to give rise to a conflict of interest to the Chief Compliance Officer, Chief Executive Officer or Vice President, Finance of the Company, who shall be responsible for determining whether such transaction or relationship constitutes a conflict of interest. If you are an executive officer or director, it is your responsibility to disclose such a transaction or relationship to the Chair of the Board of Directors. If you are the Chair of the Board of Directors it is your responsibility to disclose such a transaction or relationship to the Lead Director of the Board of Directors, if any, or the Chair of the Audit Committee of the Board of Directors, if there is no Lead Director. The Board shall be responsible in such event for determining whether such transaction or relationship constitutes a conflict of interest.
